

Contents

On the Cover

Archaeologists Christopher Nicholson, Laura Scheiber, and Maureen Boyle map tipi rings at the Coyote Circle Site, Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area.

Features

12 Bad Pass Archaeology

Students employ GNSS technology to map and understand early-day Native American civilization in Big Sky Country.
By Laura L. Scheiber, Judson Byrd Finley, and Maureen P. Boyle

24 Rapid Surveyor: Mapping the Built Environment and Beyond

The demand for increased resolution, detail, and accuracy has resulted in new technological developments for geo-information sensors.
By Dr. Anthony Demiss

Departments

10 The Wow Factor

Successful RTN entrepreneur Loyola Spatial Systems has developed a cool new web app that uses Google Maps to track rover locations.

32 RTN 101: Network Geometry—Design Meets Reality (Part 12)

Ultimately, the test of functionality reigns supreme when it come to the layout of RTN base stations.
By Gavin Schrock, LS

50 Equipment Review: Leica System 1200 (Part 2)

Our review continues with the Smart Antenna and RX1250 controller for this capable positioning and measurement system.
By Shawn Billings, LS

60 Product Review: Prefiniti by Center Line Services

This management system provides everything a survey company needs to effectively manage workflow and client contact.
By Joe Bell, LS

In This Issue

6 Editor's Corner: The Wow Factor
By Marc Cheves, LS

8 Reconnaissance: The Stories They Tell
By Gary Kent, LS

72 Vantage Point: Just Say "No"
By Wendy Lathrop, LS

67 Advertisers' Directory

68 MarketPlace

Note:

Joel Leininger is taking a break this month and will return in the next issue.